oblique solutions

Amoco Chemical / BP Global North Charleston, South Carolina

the situation:

The project reference area for this large chemical blending plant had grown until file drawers were filled to capacity, lateral cabinets were blocking hallways and clerks were way behind in filing. These project records are the core information for this operation. It became imperative that these files be organized for quick reference and security. The proposal of using a conference room to store the files was accepted, and turned into the new filing room. The goal of this project was to bring all of the files to one central location, develop an efficient indexing system for the files and have as little down time as possible.

the solution:

To create a solution that met all of the goals of the client a mobile shelving system with Oblique compartments and Oblique's Color-Keyed Indexing™ was the answer. Nine mobiles were installed into the conference room with Oblique LC (legal size) v-base and LC50 box-base compartments. The new system provided 30,000 total filing inches, which was a great addition from their previous method of filing. The new system also allowed for 30% growth over the next few years.

Projects were indexed numerically creating an ideal situation for direct file transfer. Labels were pre-printed and inserted by Oblique in addition to pre-snapping all of the compartments to create little down time. By converting the system to mobile shelving lined with Oblique hanging compartments the client was able to re-organize all project records, maintain records in a secure area with no exposure to unauthorized personnel, locate misplaced files and records were easily indexing eliminating a computer database. The reduction of personnel from five down to two was also a great benefit for the client.

This project was directly responsible for the research library to submit a request and purchase a very similar mobile system with Oblique compartments.
